

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

23 June, 2011 – 11.00am

DELAYS AT ADELAIDE AIRPORT

Passengers at Adelaide Airport may experience some delays this morning due to a failure of the main power supply and emergency power supply at Terminal 1 (T1).

The temporary loss of power occurred approximately 10.20am, and disrupted airline check-in, baggage system and passenger security screening. In particular, some passengers within the customs-controlled international departures area are being re-screened as a precaution in accordance with security and customs requirements.

Power is now being gradually restored to the terminal. However, Adelaide Airport Ltd expects that there will be some delays with check-in and security screening, which may in turn lead to delays in flight departures.