How We Create Value

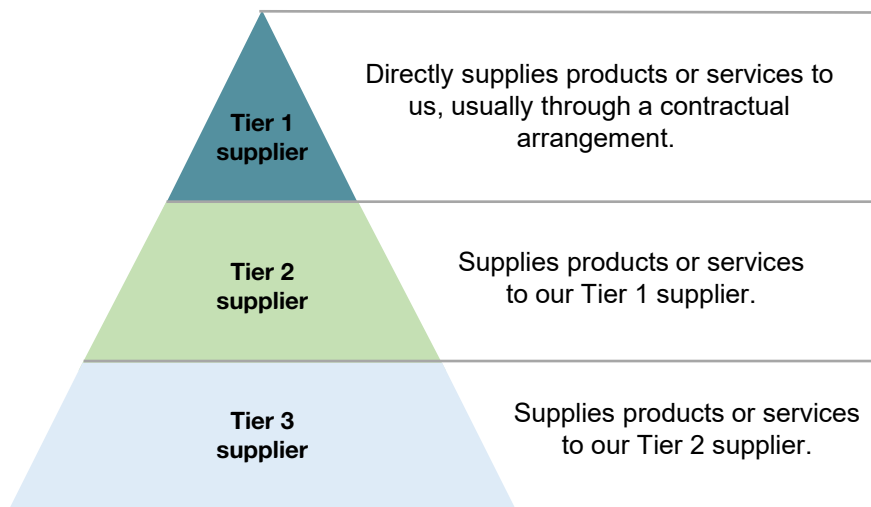

Our Supply Chain

Our supply chain is wide-ranging and global, and incorporates a range of products and services across various industry sectors, including Capital Construction & Property, Utilities, Airport Service Contracts, Consulting, IT Hardware and Software and Facilities Management and Maintenance. At its most complex, our supply chain is several tiers deep, and in multiple jurisdictions. The majority of our direct suppliers are based in Australia. Other regions that we are aware of products and services being sourced from include China, UK and Europe, North America, Malaysia and other parts of South East Asia.

In reviewing our supply chain we have adopted The United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, which recommends businesses focus on assessing general areas of operations and supply chains where modern slavery risks are likely to be most significant. In turn, risks are prioritised, focusing on the most 'severe' risks, i.e. those that would cause the most harm to people, have the gravest impact or scale, or where delayed response would make them irremediable.

Assessing our Modern Slavery Risk

We categorise our supply base by Tiers, whereby a Tier is the measure of the 'distance' of a supplier from the organisation.

We hold the greatest visibility and leverage over our Tier 1 suppliers and of course, our own operations. We have progressed our Modern Slavery risk assessment of our own operations and all critical suppliers where there was a potential for modern slavery.

The majority of our Tier 1 suppliers are based in Australia and supply goods and services that are procured and produced within Australia. The ongoing review of the Modern Slavery risk assessment through engagement with key stakeholders assessed that the risk of modern slavery in the majority of our operations and Tier 1 supply chain is low as:

- The work is predominantly skill based and requires industry and/or professional qualifications;
- With respect to our own operations, we have significant measures in place which aim to protect the human rights of workers and ensure compliance with labour laws;
- Our supply chains are usually short and we utilise established and consistent contractors;
- To work on our site, many contractors are subject to extensive background check requirements which confirm identity, right to work and any criminal record; and
- Our staff have regular visibility of the people and the work being undertaken.

We have classified our modern slavery risk areas as follows:

- Procurement and outsourcing of support services e.g. cleaning, trolley management, bussing, security etc;
- Construction and Infrastructure including the products and raw materials in our supply chain;
- IT hardware and software;
- Other low value indirect procurement e.g. uniforms, safety clothing;
- Sub-contractors; and
- Human trafficking through the airport e.g. international arrivals.

Addressing our Modern Slavery Risk

Commitment

Sustainability is at the core of our business operations. The value we place on sustainability helps us respond to and pre-empt the complex social, environmental, market, and technological influences within which we operate. We recognise the importance of the introduction of the Commonwealth Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Act) and the integral role this will play in further solidifying the sustainability of the community and ethical business.

AAL places considerable importance on maintaining strong controls within our business. Our structure includes clearly drawn lines of accountability and delegation of authority. Adherence to the company Code of Conduct is required at all times and our Board actively promotes a culture of quality and integrity. As such, AAL has continued to develop of our modern slavery governance structure to ensure the effective implementation of our modern slavery action plan to mitigate this risk.

This included:

- Conducting regular reviews of the modern slavery risk register to ensure appropriate controls remain in place and are effective in managing modern slavery risk.
- Progress towards the achievement of actions identified in our modern slavery roadmap:
 - The improvement identifying high risk suppliers in AAL's supply chain;
 - The rolling out of Modern Slavery training to our staff who manage contracts and/or procurements;
 - The implementation of new Project and Procurement Risk Assessment templates which include the consideration of modern slavery; and
 - Continued implementation of a Modern Slavery Assurance Program, which assesses high risk contractors/suppliers for the controls they have in place to manage Modern Slavery risk in their operations and supply chain.

We have numerous policies and frameworks in place to mitigate human rights and modern slavery risks.

Modern Slavery Guidelines

Our Modern Slavery Compliance Guidelines are designed to form part of our broader organisation-wide Procurement Policy and Framework and Corporate Social Responsibility Policy. They outline a uniform approach to engaging the market and managing contracts to mitigate the risk of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.

The Guidelines provide information to:

- Explain the concept of modern slavery and what needs to be done where an individual suspects modern slavery is taking place in our operations or supply chains;
- Clarify each individual's role in complying with applicable legislation and policies, including key responsibilities of our executive team, management and other stakeholders;
- Outlines the response process upon receipt of a modern slavery incident; and
- Require that modern slavery is embedded into all procurement stages, from the development of sourcing strategies, tenders, evaluations, contract clauses and KPIs.

Sustainable Procurement Guidelines

Our Sustainable Procurement Guidelines are designed to ensure strategic, operational, legal, reputation, financial, climate and other Environmental, Social or Governance (ESG) related risks are identified, assessed, effectively managed and monitored to enable achievement of our business objectives.

Other Tools and Templates

We have developed a number of tools and templates to support a proactive approach to mitigating modern slavery risk.

These include:

- A Project Risk Assessment template to aid identification and management of modern slavery risk.

Addressing our Modern Slavery Risk

Supplier Code of Conduct

AAL's Supplier Code of Conduct has been established to ensure our suppliers and contractors are aware of their obligation to meet our expectations of responsible behaviour to their subcontractors and employees. This policy includes standards related to human rights, equality, ethics and ethical trading.

Failure by the supplier to adhere to the Supplier Code of Conduct can result in termination of the supply arrangement. In FY23, there have been no supplier terminations for non-compliance.

Whistleblowing Policy

We are committed to achieve high standards of ethical conduct and compliance with our legal obligations. This commitment includes creating and maintaining a working environment in which all people are able to freely raise concerns regarding actual or suspected unethical, unlawful or undesirable conduct in a safe, supportive and confidential environment.

Our Whistleblower Policy is underpinned by our values of being accountable and authentic, conducting ourselves with integrity, being responsible, efficient and respectful, taking pride in our achievements, and building relationships based on trust to foster great teams. The policy applies to any of our officers or employees, suppliers and associates, a relative of an employee and former employees.

The Whistleblower Policy was reviewed to ensure alignment with modern slavery requirements and best practice. The policy was communicated to all staff and major suppliers, and is published on our website.

An independent, externally managed Whistleblower Hotline, through which a whistleblower may make a disclosure by phone, email, mail and through a customised website is also available 24/7. It is promoted on our intranet, as well as signage in our buildings and site offices. People can make reports anonymously, and any individuals who report genuine concerns will be protected from reprisal or detriment.

- A detailed Procurement Risk Assessment template and prompt sheet for contract owners and operations managers that can be used to identify, assess and capture management of modern slavery risks associated with high risk suppliers, tenants and operators;
- A due diligence questionnaire to support tender evaluations;
- Contract clauses which require that minimum standards in ethical, human rights and health and safety are met;
- An Annual Compliance Commitment Declaration which requires suppliers to provide an annual declaration that they understand their obligations and have not contravened any laws, including Modern Slavery Laws and other Commonwealth Workplace Laws;
- A Modern Slavery Compliance Plan to ensure that AAL continues to discharge its responsibilities under the Act and that controls remain in place; and
- A Modern Slavery Assurance Program, which assesses high risk contractors/suppliers for the controls they have in place to manage Modern Slavery risk in their operations and supply chain.

Working with our suppliers

In preparation for the implementation of the Act, AAL distributed a pilot questionnaire to key suppliers. This sought to understand their maturity in mitigating the risks of modern slavery in their own supply chain. It was evident that many suppliers were still in the early stages of developing their systems, processes, policies and procedures and were facing challenges in responding effectively to modern slavery due diligence requirements. As such, we are now placing a greater emphasis on developing a closer relationship with our key suppliers to understand their business and help them to align with our expectations. We have done this by establishing an Assurance Program, which assesses controls in place for high risk suppliers and generates conversations, which allows us to continue to progress maturity in the management of Modern Slavery risk.

We continue to adopt a flexible approach in the year ahead, in line with our goal of increased maturity and expectations of our suppliers over time.

Raising awareness across our business

We recognise that long term sustainable change takes time, and to be successful in achieving our united goal with our suppliers to eradicate modern slavery in supply chains, it's important that our people are educated and informed as they are at the forefront of all interactions, and actively engage with customers and suppliers on a regular basis.

As such, we are actively raising awareness and understanding amongst our people on the importance of preventing modern slavery and human trafficking, the risk indicators and signs to look out for, and how to escalate concerns.

We will continue to raise awareness more broadly across employees and suppliers.

The Effectiveness of our Actions

Our Enterprise Risk Management Policy and Framework (Risk Framework) provides direction for an integrated and consistent approach to risk management practices across our business. The ongoing management of modern slavery risk and assurance activities will be carried out in accordance with the Risk Framework which includes dedicated modern slavery risk identification and assessment, modern slavery risk register reviews and focused control assurance reviews. Outcomes of these activities are captured in our risk and incident management system tool (CAMMS) and are reported to the Board through our established governance forums.

Modern slavery actions are embedded as part of our 'business as usual' management practice integrated into operational activity. Our modern slavery compliance program delivery is led by our Risk and Compliance Manager. These governance forums include:

- The Risk Working Group is comprised of Senior Managers and meets monthly to address risk and compliance matters in accordance with a defined Terms of Reference; and
- The Risk Management Committee consisting of our Executive Management team, which reports into the Board Audit and Compliance Committee.

The Risk and Compliance Manager will measure our year-on-year growth using the maturity assessment, as outlined earlier in this statement, and will report on this at the governance forums outlined above.

Consultation

Whilst AAL has a number of entities it owns and controls, these entities have a common board and common staff which have oversight of all risks of modern slavery across our operations. All staff abide by the same policies and procedures and manage modern slavery risk in accordance with AAL's Enterprise Risk Management Framework.
